

TRUE OR FALSE

Pocketmouse is a story character, but there are real Pacific pocket mice living in Southern California. Use the Internet to determine if each statement is true or false.

1. The scientific name for the Pacific pocket mouse is Perognathus longimembris pacificus .	T	F
2. The Pacific pocket mouse is an endangered animal.	T	F
3. Pocket mice acquired their name because they have fur-lined external cheek pouches, which are like pockets.	T	F
4. The Pacific pocket mouse is over 7 inches long.	T	F
5. The primary diet of the Pacific pocket mouse is annual grasses and seeds.	T	F
6. Pacific pocket mice are nocturnal and forage at night.	T	F
7. Snakes, owls, and coyotes are predators of the Pacific pocket mice.	T	F
8. Pacific pocket mice live in the crevices of rocks.	T	F
9. The Pacific pocket mouse has brown fur and a cream colored underside.	T	F
10. The Pacific pocket mouse disperses seeds, which makes it helpful to nature.	T	F